Ambient surroundings:

A healthy working environment is an essential requirement for new ideas and working successfully. St. Johann is surrounded by a 40.000m² large, green property. At night, visitors can enjoy a walk in the nature, hit strikes in the bowling alley or pocket the balls on the pool billiard table. For special occasions and confidential conversations or discussions within small groups, we recommend the lounge with cosy open fire, where guests can also enjoy delicate wines. The restaurant with its terrace and garden round off the overall concept of the meeting and conferencing location.

How to find us...

St. Johann is located in the Southern Palatinate near the Palatinate Forest. In the Central Middle Ages, it served as a monastery. In 1764, Prince Thomas von Löwenstein replaced it with a manor house in rococo style to use as his official residence. Since 1913, the manor house is owned by BASF and has served as a conference hotel for more than 40 years. Employees from all over the world come to Albersweiler to improve their skills with trainings and seminars. The aristocratic appearance of the property has been preserved, whereas the interior now presents itself in a modern look and feel. Furthermore, St. Johann is located only 55km, respectively around 40 minutes away from the Ludwigshafen site.
